The font family I have chosen to use is Century Gothic. I think the thin text works well for the image I'm going for for the Arts ad Event.

For the background i think just using the standard white background will suffice as I will be using images to allow events to be shown off and therefore the background colour won't matter as much.

The navigation links will have access keys for anyone that needs to use them.

Large background image to cover over the header, nav and intro sections of the html. The use of the arrow button is there to allow uers to navigate the page without scrolling.

This is the first section. This will contain the event that is most important to the Arts and Events company.

The image here should use a white background, so that it blends into the page and allows for a smoother viewing experiance.

This image here will be an extra image for the Arts and Events business to show off. It will be contained in a div as there is no specific semantic tag that I can use for just a photo.

Here is the main section of the website. This is where the events will be shown off for users to discover what they want to look at.
